A TUBERCULOSIS CLINIC TO BE HELD IN EAGLES' HALL

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. At least that is the belief of the California Tuberculosis Association, and the San Mateo County Tuberculosis Society.

Along these lines, these associations, in conjunction with the Bureau of Tuberculosis of the State Board of Health are instituting some diagnostic chest clinics in this county during the week of November 1. Prominent specialists from all over the state will be present to make the examinations.

All persons suffering from chonic coughs, "weak lungs," night sweats, lowered vitality and underweight should by all means take advantage of this opportunity for free examination.

Physicians know that tuberculosis is preventable, and when discovered early is perfectly curable, but most patients make the mistake of waiting too long before going for diagnosis. Of course no treatments are given at these clinics, but patients are told what they should do, and can continue under the supervision of their own physicians.

The clinics will be held in Daly City, Wednesday, November 3, at the Eagles' Hall, on Mission street; in San Mateo on Thursday, November 4, at the Parish house of St. Mathews on Baldwin avenue on the highway; in Redwood City, November 5, at the Woman's Club house at corner of Broadway and Clinton avenue.

These clincs are free to every one in the county and are paid for by the Christmas seal sale.

All residents of Daly City and vicinity are invited to take advantage of the service offered by this clinic.

OLD-TIME RESIDENTS MOVE TO NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Harold King, for eighteen years residents of our community, have moved into their new home in San Francisco, at 880 Huron.

The old King home opposite the high school, at 6951 Mission street, one of the early residences in that section, was recently purchased by A. R. Haskins and will be raised, remodeled and renovated throughout.

So, as the years go by, Daly City and Colma are being welded together and it is becoming harder and harder to see where one begins and where the other leaves off.

With South San Francisco spreading out westerly and Colma growing all four ways, when some of these old-timers like the Kings visit us in a few years, they will see a new city which while it bears some resemblance to Colma, Daly City, South San Francisco, Baden, Tanforan and San Bruno, will really be one big community, with a population of a hundred thousand or more.

The man who can't or won't see that development coming and take advantage of it by putting his money and interest into the community life is losing the chance of his life time.

HELPS ENTERTAIN DISABLED SOLDIERS

Mrs. Catherine Olsen, who has the unique distinction of being one of our most progressive business women and is also considered a premier soprano vocalist, was the directress of a large, enjoyable and successful party given in honor of and for the benefit of the disabled veterans at Letterman hospital, the Presidio, San Francisco, on Sunday.

As the head of the Community Realty Company, Mrs. Olsen has impressed herself on the community as a modern business woman of the highest type, who combines commercial sagacity with personal charm and who yet finds time and opportunity to cultivate and use helpfully her talent and musical training.

Mrs. Olsen was for four years with the Canadian forces overseas, being stationed in France, serving as a nurse with the Red Cross, hence she knows something of the needs of the disabled veterans.

SUNSHINE MARKET OPENS OCTOBER 30

Work is about completed for the opening of the Sunshine Market, at 6307-09 Mission street, and the formal opening of this new Daly City business enterprise will take place on Saturday, October 30.

MAN'S BODY FOUND ON SALADA BEACH

The nude body of a man, with a heavy silk necktie knotted about the throat, was taken from the ocean at Salada Beach early Monday by Constable J. C. Wallace, South San Francisco, who was called to the spot by Patrick O'Malley, rancher of the district, who found the body while walking along the beach.

The body, that of a man about 50 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches in height, and weighing 150 pounds, was brought to the mortuary establishment of W. C. Lasswell & Co., Daly City, where an inquest was held on Tuesday by Deputy Coroner Luella Pepper. Dr. A. H. Rankin made an examination of the body, but could not discover any indications of violence.

The coroner's jury was of the opinion that the unfortunate man had come to his death by drowning, either accidental or suicidal.

It is believed the body had been in the water at least two weeks before it came ashore and was discovered by Mr. O'Malley.

Unusual muscular development indicated that the man was athletic, but the hands are not those of one accustomed to heavy labor.

The theory was advanced at first that the man had come to his death by foul play, but investigations by the coroners' jury and Dr. Rankin would indicate that his death was the result of accidental drowning or suicide.

Efforts are being made to identify the body, but there seems to be no clues upon which to work.

RECOGNIZE HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI

After considerable discussion of the constitution submitted by the constitution committee at the trustee's meeting, Messrs. Gehringer, Stark and Bentley voted to recognize the Jefferson Union high school alumni association.

The purposes set forth in the constitution submitted were: (1) To keep the graduates of the high school in closer touch with each other and the school's conditions and needs. (2) To honor and entertain the Senior class of each year in a fitting manner.

While the alumni as at present constituted is small in numbers, they have proven themselves aggressive in spirit, and as the years go by they will outnumber the student body and exert an influence which can only be for the betterment of all.

Now that official recognition has been accorded them, they will formally organize and will at a near date elect permanent officers and make definite plans. Miss Anderson, science teacher at Jefferson Union high school, will act as their official faculty advisor for this year.

BOYS TAUGHT CRIME BY MODERN FAGAN

In default of bail set at $1,000 cash, George Redston, aged 24, was sent to the county jail at Redwood City, to await a preliminary hearing, following his arraignment in the court of Police Pudge George Kertell of San Mateo.

Redston is alleged to have schooled two boys in the business of check passing, according to the story of the lads, held by Redwood City police on a similar charge.

The boys are Chester and Edmund Hart, twin brothers, 16 years of age, who come from Los Angeles. They charge they were pupils of a modern Fagin, who taught them the tricks of passing worthless checks, and pointed out the "easy marks" so that they might "clean up on the tank town merchants." They clam that they met their teacher in crime in San Francisco, and he brought them to San Mateo to show them the "easy marks." They have also admitted stealing a number of sewing machines secured from dealers on the plea that they were sewing machine salesmen. Two of the machines secured by this ruse in San Jose were sold in San Mateo, the youths admitted.

AMERICAN RED CROSS TO MEET AT BURLINGAME

The annual meeting of the San Mateo County Chapter of the American Red Cross will be held at the Burlingame Woman's Club on Thursday, October 28 at 2:30 o'clock.

Establishes Route of New Highway

DAN McSWEENEY QUITS RACE FOR JUSTICE OF PEACE

Dan McSweeney, city clerk of South San Francisco and brother of County Tax Collector Ambrose McSweeney, has withdrawn from the race for justice of the peace in the First township.

Mr. McSweeney, a veteran campaigner in county politics and for many years a city official at South San Francisco, polled 2,542 votes in the primary as against 2,901 for Judge Edward Farrell and 2,919 for Judge Ellis C. Johnson.

Mr. McSweeney's withdrawal leaves the way clear for Johnson and Farrell, as two candidates are to be elected.

In announcing his withdrawal from the race, Mr. McSweeney said:

"After due and careful consideration of the subject of my candidacy for the office of justice of the peace of San Mateo's First township, I have definitely concluded to withdraw from the race for the position.

"The result of the recent August primary election indicates fairly well the trend of the wishes of the voters. Therefore, and in order to avoid further efforts and responsibilities on the part of my friends, and opponents alike, I have decided to take this step.

"I thank all those who so loyally and faithfully worked in my behalf."

BELMONT NOW CITY OF THE SIXTH CLASS

The incorporation of Belmont as a city of the sixth class has been approved by the voters of that community at a special election called by the board of supersivors. The vote in favor of incorporation was overwhelming, being 171 for incorporation and 79 against.

While the voters were deciding the matter of incorporation, they also voted on their first board of trustees and selected the men who will serve the city as the first city clerk and the first city treasurer. On the board of truseees, C. L. Jordan, C. J. Messner, Lewis Vannier and Dr. Harry C. Warren were elected, while George Roussel and Thomas Pennington tied for the fifth seat. Just how the winner of this seat on the board will be determined has not yet been announced, but it will probably be determined by drawing of lots. D. W. Callen was elected first city clerk, and S. J. Cook was accorded the honor of serving as the first city treasurer.

RICHMOND ASSURED NEW FORD PLANT

At the end of three years the Ford Motor Company will be operating a $2,000,000 plant on the Richmond waterfront, employing a minimum of 800 men, Fred Parr of the Parr Terminal Corporation, told the city council of Richmond last Monday in accepting a 50-year lease of the outer and inner harbor of the city.

He read to the council a telegram from J. Crawford, assistant to the superintendent of the Ford plant in Detroit, accepting Parr's plan for the erection of the plant as soon as the property is available. The property, developed tide land, will not be available in time to have the plant in operation in less than three years, Parr said.

ARSON SUSPECTS SOUGHT

Evidence linking members of an alleged bandit gang in San Francisco with the burning of a home owned by Detective George P. Wafer, of San Francisco, at Point San Pedro, is being gathered from several sources, according to San Mateo county officers. It is believed the house was burned by members of a San Francisco bandit gang in revenge for the apprehension of the bandits who recently killed five men in San Francisco.

THE PASSING OF DEBS

Eugene V. Debs, who five times was a candidate for president of the United States, and who once polled a million votes while a prisoner in the Atlanta federal prison, died Wednesday at Elmhurst, Ill. Debs was within a few days of 71 years of age when death ended his activities. He was the acknowledged leader of the Socialists, and had spent his life in an endeavor to make a more comfortable world for the common people.

Says Poverty Made Him a Thief

Poverty and a hopeless outlook, complicated by the illness of his wife, caused Ramon Oroquita, 36, cobbler of Belmont, to seize a sum of money at a Redwood garage when opportunity offered, he confessed at his home where he was traced by members of the garage firm.

RACING FAVORED BY BUSINESS MEN OF SAN FRANCISCO

"Big Business" favors racing. The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has recommended Initiative Measure Number Six, which provides for limited periods of the sport with the pari mutuel system of wagering in operation.

The Chamber is made up of the manufacturers, importers, shipping men, bankers and men of affairs generally of San Francisco, and its endorsement of a legislative proposal means the significance of Number Six is thoroughly understood by citizens who are accustomed to handling ing problems in a big way.

Racing flourishes in England, France, Australia, and in many sections of the United States, where capitalists often go themselves or send representatives to establish business connections or cement those in existence for some time. Quite a number of the officers of concerns in San Francisco make it a practice to attend the renewal each summer of the Derby over at Epsom Downs in England.

The business men know that the pari mutuel method of speculation is the fairest in the world, and accordingly had little hesitancy in making a recommendation that the membership of the Chamber give whole-hearted support to Number Six.

Speculation is no bogie to men of affairs, as they are in the habit of "taking a chance" every day on some scheme or other. The man of education and experience in the business world recognizes that the timid get nowhere in life, and that a little sport, especially the entertainment furnished by racing, is good for every man and woman in the community.

The breeding of thoroughbred horses is a mammoth industry and it is incumbent on such an institution as the Chamber of Commerce to encourage in all ways possible the building up of enterprises that entail the expenditure of millions of dollars.

With victory at the polls on November 2 for Number Six, it will not be long before California will be a rival once more of Kentucky as the nursery of wonderful race horses. History will repeat with just a bit of help from the electorate of the state.

GREATER EMPLOYMENT IN CALIFORNIA INDUSTRIES

The October, 1926, issue of the California Labor Market Bulletin, issued by Walter G. Mathewson, state labor commissioner, shows an increase of 3.9 per cent in the total number of workers employed by 673 representative California industrial establishments in September, 1926, as compared with September, 1925. These establishments employed 163,852 workers in September, 1925, but in September, 1926, they employed 170,181 workers. The Labor Market Bulletin shows not only an increase in the total number of employes, but it also shows an increase of 4.1 per cent in the total volume of the weekly pay roll. Thus, the total weekly pay roll of the same 673 factories was $4,754,506 in September, 1926, and $4,566,448 in September, 1925.

The average weekly earnings of factory employes rose from $27.87 in September, 1925, to $27.94 in September, 1926, an increase of 7 cents, of three-tenths of one per cent.

PARENT-TEACHERS OF THE SECOND DISTRICT MEET

Every section of the Second district, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, was represented at the executive board meeting held at the Clift House, San Francisco, on Thursday, October 14. Many chairmen, as well as Federation presidents, rendered reports. Mrs. E. Burkhalter, of Oakland, was made chairman of extension for colored people in line with the work of the state. Mrs. L. C. Grasser, of Oakland, was elected vice-president to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mrs. H. F. Vollmer. Mrs. Herbert Brook of Mt. Diablo Federation ad Mrs. R. M. Fahrenholtz of Richmond were also elected vice-presidents for the district. All federation and local associations in the district were asked to write Mrs. Florence Kahn to do everything in her power to have the Curtis-Reed bill on education, H. R. Bill No. 291, voted out of committee, and to write all congressmen to vote for H. R. Bill No. 362, placing prohibition enforcement officers under civil service.

Have Close Call From Fire

The lives of two men were periled when fire totally destroyed their home John Busarlua and Jack McKenzie, at South San Francisco. The men, were partially overcome by smoke and were rescued with difficulty by firemen, who dragged the unconscious men to safety. The house, a one-story frame dwelling, was totally destroyed.

RECKLESS DRIVER INJURES RANCHER

Adrian Vornola, a rancher of Salada Beach, was seriously injured last Sunday when he was run down by a hit-and-run motorist on the San Pedro road at Salada. Leaving his victim unconscious in the roadway, the man who ran Vornola down sped toward San Francisco at a speed estimated by witnesses to have been more than 50 miles per hour.

The car believed to have struck Vornola was found two miles north of Salada, where it had plunged through a fence on a sharp turn and tumbled over a high embankment.

The car was found by Deputy Sheriff Edward Sleigal of Salada, who gave chase immediately following the accident. The automobile was found with the wheels still spinning as it lay in the gulch. Sleigel noticed a slight movement in the brush nearby, and hastened to investigate. He found John D. Murphy, aged 65, of 742 Harrison street, San Francisco, trying to crawl away through the undergrowth on his hands and knees. Sleigal placed him under arrest and brought him to Daly City. It is said he was too intoxicted to give any account of himself at the time of his arrest.

Vornola was taken to St. Luke's hospital in San Francisco by a passing motorist. There it was found that his skull was fractured and that he was suffering from severe injuries.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Meeks has been assigned to complete the investigation of the crash and is now endeavoring to find two witnesses who saw Vornola run down.

Attempts to bail Murphy out of jail proved futile, and he must remain in jail until the case is cleared up sufficiently to warrant a definite charge.

LEGION TO OBSERVE EDUCATION WEEK

WILL FINISH ROAD LONG HOPED FOR IN FOUR MONTHS

The Colma "bottleneck" will be broken within the next four months. This was assured last Saturday when the California Highway Commission was granted an order by Superior Judge George H. Buck to take immediate possession of the necessary right-of-way.

Under a contract let last week to the H. J. Kaiser Paving Company of Oakland, work will be started, probably within the next week, and must be completed within 100 days from the time of beginning. Lack of right-of-way was the only thing which had threatened to hold up the starting of the contract.

The order was granted immediately after the commission had filed condemnation proceedings against the property owners having land in the path of the proposed right-of-way. With the condemnation suit was filed a petition setting forth the engineer's estimate of the value of the land to be used in the breaking of the "bottleneck." The value is set at $75,000, and the possession order was granted to become effective as soon as the money was deposited in a bank by the highway commission.

Property owners will be unable to hold up the work of widening the highway from Colma to Cypress Lawn cemetery. If they are dissatisfied with the amounts alloted them, they may file contest and have the question of value threshed out in court.

More than fifty defendants were named in the suit.

BOARD PLEDGES AIRPORT SUPPORT

At the meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors at Redwood City last Monday, a resolution pledging the co-operation and assistance of the board of supervisors to the officials of San Francisco in the selection and location of an airport in San Mateo county, was passed.

Miss Elizabeth Hole, secretary of the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce appeared before the board and urged the adoption of a resolution endorsing the San Mateo site for the airport. Miss Hole made a clear and logical argument in favor of the site, but Supervisor Thomas Hickey vigilant in the interests of his home town of South San Francisco, insisted that no particular site be endorsed Hickey stated that he was strongly in favor of pledging the co-operation of the board to a location in San Mateo county generally and suggested that Miss Hole submit such a resolution.

Such a resolution was then presented by Miss Hole and adopted by the board, and County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese was instructed to forward it to the San Francisco supervisors.

A large delegation of property owners from North Palo Alto were present to present protests against the proposed street work in that district. County Surveyor George Kneese presented his estimate of cost for the work, and much argument ensued. The board finally put the matter over until the meeting of November 1, with the suggestion that the people of the district get together and agree upon some definite plan before that date.

A petition was presented from Lomita Park, which it was stated contained the signatures of over 80 per cent of the property owners, urging that the board sign the street contract for that district, which has been held up by litigation for about three years. The board, after hearing arguments laid the matter over for final action on November 1.

Maps of new subdivisions in Emerald Lake tract were presented by Charles Holt and adopted by the board. Maps of a new subdivision of lot 26 in San Mateo Park and property Number 3 of the W Country Club were also presented and accepted. A resolution fixing assessments for paving of Wa street was presented by A Joseph B. Gordon and adopted by board.

Preventive Treatment of Incipient Disease in Hands of Family Physician

By DR. HAVEN EMERSON, Columbia University

THE rate of improvement in the prevention of disease depends upon the quality of general medical examinations given to apparently healthy persons of all ages, and regularly at stated intervals. Having passed through the eras of sanitation and law enforcement by health officers, and a period of popular education in the elements of personal hygiene for the control of communicable diseases, we are now at the point where individual and universal participations in preventive medicine is indispensable for patients and physicians.

A reasonably adequate program of personal protective services for health includes prenatal and infant care, supervision of the preschool and school child, of the wage earner and men and women of mature and advanced years, based always upon an exact direction of their manner of life by the family physician, whose diagnostic skill will be matched against incipient rather than advanced disease or disorder of function and structure of the body, and whose treatments will be directed towards the use of physiological measures, rather than operative and medicinal procedure.

The periodic health examination as proposed by the American Medical association, when widely employed and used as seriously and effectively as are the services of physicians for the care of disease, can be relied upon to have a greater influence in reducing sick and death rates than all the powers and expenditure of public and private health agencies combined.

Hope of Nation's Future Lies in the Small, Well-Planned Community

By REV. DR. JOHN H. LEVER, Philadelphia.

A big city is a monstrosity and life in one is unbearable, that's all.

All my ministry has been in large cities. But a big city is a monstrosity. This city is especially a bedlam of noise. The tooting of automobile horns is barbarous. London, where the traffic is ever so much heavier, moves as smoothly and quietly as the Mississippi river. The noise here is terrible. It is worse than terrible. That's all.

Henry Ford is a wise man. He is getting his employees away from big cities, building small plants and erecting well-organized and homelike small cities. It is the small, well-planned community that is the hope of the future.

Before coming here I worked in several institutions in St. Louis, my duties being among the insane. However, I don't think I ever saw so many queer people as are in the streets here. I think if I lived here much longer it would drive me insane. In Detroit a man would be arrested for blowing his automobile horn at every crossing.

I'm strongly in favor of zoning for races of men as well as business. In St. Louis this method is worked successfully, although I believe it is unconstitutional.

Country Has Reached Turning Point in History of Roadbuilding

By CHARLES M. UPHAM, American Road Builders' Association.

At the time when Good Roads week, January 10 to 16, opens the United States will have enough roads to completely encircle the globe one hundred and twenty-nine times. Over half a million miles will have been improved to some degree, and the first transcontinental improved highway will have been completed.

The transcontinental highway extends from New York to Washington, D. C.; St. Louis, Tulsa, El Paso, Phoenix and San Diego, Calif. At the present time approximately 99 per cent of this road has been improved over a length of 3,350 miles.

Good Roads week marks the turning point in the history of roadbuilding. It is the point where the construction of highways ceases to be a matter of speculation and goes on under scientific schedule. We are now spending approximately $1,000,200,000 per year for these highways, and the fact that such expenditure can be measured dollar for dollar in earning power is of great importance. Every school, civic club, government department and fraternal organization in the United States is expected to celebrate this week with fitting programs devoted to good roads.

Physical Defects in Children Caused by Devitalization of Food Grains

By DR. IRVING J. EALES, Chicago

Fifteen million children in the United States are suffering from physical defects because of improper feeding.

Most of the defects are caused by modern milling methods which devitalize the food grains. Under modern milling methods the wheat is denatured and devitalized and the wheat flour is colorless and almost lifeless.

To the lack of a balanced diet can be attributed the fact that one-fiftieth of the children born in the United States die before they are five, 300,000 die every year, and one-half of those born die before reaching twenty-four.

Statistics of the United States bureau of education show 400,000 children have organic disease; 1,000,000 have tuberculosis in some form; 1,000,000 have spinal curvature; 1,000,000 have defective hearing; 4,000,000 suffer from malnutrition; 6,000,000 have enlarged tonsils, adenoids or other gland diseases; 10,000,000 have defective teeth, and 15,000,000 need attention for physical defects prejudicial to health.

Responsibility of Individual to God Cardinal Tenet of Christians

By DR. PHILLIP VOLMER, Palmyra, New Jersey.

The modern system of sociology, as well as the Christian religion, is based upon the fact of the possibility of regeneration of man. Spiritual rebirth such as Christ taught has been proved millions of times throughout the ages.

How futile and hypocritical it would be for us to pour our gifts into the building and upkeep of churches, social institutions and other agencies for the rebuilding of character if such doctrines were not true.

The statement that man's character and possibilities are predetermined by heredity and environment is a highly dangerous belief—and it is nothing more than a belief. It is dangerous because it makes of a man a machine when it denies his responsibility for his acts. It is a doctrine that if widely accepted would prove destructive to our social structure.

REPRESENTS LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE TELEPHONE ART

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company is engaged in completing an extensive long distance cable installation between the San Francisco bay area and Sacramento, which will be the largest project of its kind west of Chicago and will represent the latest developments in the telephone art. The service demands between the San Francisco bay area, Sacramento and tributary points have shown a steady increase during the past few years. Telephone experts have made every endeavor in their analyses of future conditions to provide instrumentalities to adequately meet the growth in this territory and this project, which had its initial inception with the company early in 1923, has been under active construction for the past twelve months, and will be placed in service in time to meet the holiday business of this year.

The long distance cable is ninety miles in length and is routed by way of Oakland, Crockett and Carquinez Straits to Sacramento. It is equipped to initially care for 275 talking lines between the bay area and Crockett, and 135 talking lines through to Sacramento. By placing additional equipment, this number of lines can and will be materially increased as occasion may require and will eventually be the means of caring for all service to Sacramento and points north and east as far as Portland, Seattle, Chicago and New York.

The cable comprises approximately 40,000 miles of wire weighing in the neighborhood of 2,000 tons and suspended aerially upon 2,000 poles. Its cost will be nearly two and one-half million dollars, including a specially designed and constructed building at Crockett which will be used as a repeater or booster station and will house approximately one hundred repeaters.

HIGH VOLTAGE RECORD BROKEN BY SCIENTIST

Knowledge of the art of producing high voltage took a long step on September 17, when Professor Harris J. Ryan, experimenting before witnesses in his great laboratory at Stanford University, made a ribbon of electric flame leap a 20-foot gap and establish the amazing record of 2,100,000 volts. "Wizard" Steinmetz, holder of the previous record, never exceeded 499,000 volts.

California leads the world in long-distance transmission, and Professor Ryan's achievement is expected to bring about a further advance. Meantime he will continue his experiments in the Stanford laboratory, which was built by the university in co-operation with large electrical concerns and several power companies, among them the Pacific Gas and Electric Company. The equipment includes six giant transformers, the largest ever built.

New York State's "bean king" has been sentenced to two years at Atlanta penitentiary, probably as a result of spilling the beans.

FORTY-EIGHT LOSE THE RIGHT TO DRIVE

Forty-eight Californians lost their right to drive an automobile during the month of September, according to figures compiled by the Division of Motor Vehicles. Of this number, the division announces, more than one-half of the convictions were due to violations of the reckless driving and speeding provisions of the vehicle act. Twenty-five motorists were relieved of their licenses for being convicted three times within the year for violations of one or the other, or both, of these provisions. The largest number of suspensions for one year was that of the intoxicted drivers, which total reached fifteen.

WATERS OF BIBLICAL RIVER TO RUN FACTORY MOTORS

Jordon river, the famous Biblical stream in which souls were reborn and spirits revived, is now to revive industry in the Holy Land. On its banks the Palestine Economic Corporation will build a hydro-electric station, the output of which will supplement the product of steam plants now operating in the ancient towns of Tel Aviv, Haifa and Tiberias. With increase of power supply new industrial plants are expected to be built along the lines, and eventually, say the backers of the Jordon development, Palestine will once more become an important factor in the trade of the Orient.

SENSELESS TIRADE AGAINST RACING

In one of the senseless tirades that seek to prevent the passage of a racing law in the state of California, it has been written (in the San Francisco Examiner editorially):

"This state should not become a legal haven for touts of bookmakers and gamblers and women of not very creditable class and 'sure-thing' fixers and all the grimy underworld of 'sport.'"

That is just a sample of the brutal manner in which it is sought to influence the voters. That is a sample of the campaign that is being carried on against the greatest of all sports, and such violent language will doubtless prove a boomerang to those who seek to oppose racing in November. It is so altogether vicious and false that no decent man can for an instant be other than disgusted.

The falsity is shown when it is known that the law to bring back racing in California proposes the pari mutuel system of wagering, which is a proposition against bookmaking. That takes care of the charge that racing would bring bookmakers and gamblers to the state. The slander on the women of the turf is just as brutally false. Many of the best women of this and every other civilized country are ardent devotees of the turf. They breed and race their own horses and they have ever been women of high virtue and a correspondingly high social standing. It is a slander that would not safely be made in the presence of real men of the turf.

George Washington was a patron of the turf who owned and raced his stables of thoroughbreds, and even before the days of the Revolution it was considered a proud social obligation for the first men of the land to patronize the turf.

Germany maintained its national stud for the production of the best race horses. The King of England has always maintained a stud and a racing stable, just as the first men of every civilized country was a patron of the turf.

If such men are undesirable, then there is reason for the fight against the restoration of racing in the state of California.—Editorial from the Daily Racing Form, Chicago, October 7, 1926, owned by William Randolph Hearst.

There is a treat in store for the lovers of movies of the West next Monday and Tuesday at the State Theatre, when "The Scarlet West" will be shown, with Robert Frazer and Johnny Walker in the leading roles.

VOTE YES ON NO. 11

Appearing on the November ballot as No. 11, Constitutional Amendment No. 27 proposes that private educational institutions of secondary grade, not conducted for profit and which are accredited to the University of California, be exempt from taxation.

Therefore, if the proposed amendment be adopted, exemption will be granted to only those private educational institutions which are (1) of secondary grade (high schools); (2) not conducted for profit; (3) accredited to the University of California; (4) unconnected with any grammar or primary grades.

So stringent are these conditions that throughout the entire state of California there are but twelve schools, four in the southern and eight in the central section, which satisfactorily fill them all.

In 1925 these institutions paid taxes in an aggregate amount of less than $35,000. This represents the amount that will be lost to the state if the proposed amendement be adopted. However, the amount lost to the state in taxes is gained seventeen times over by the educational activities of these institutions. In 1925 approximately 3,100 students enrolled in these schools. The yearly cost of educating a pupil in the public high school, according to the figures furnished by the superintendent of public instruction, is $211. Applying this figure to the number of pupils who are being educated in the institutions that would be exempt from taxation by the proposed amendment, we find it would cost the state $654,100 to educate these 3,100 pupils for one year. Considering that over $650,000 are saved to the state by these institutions, the amount paid in taxes ($35,000), from which they will be exempt if the proposed amendment be adopted, dwindles to comparative insignificance.

The fact that these institutions are accredited to the University of California proves conclusively that they maintain a very high standard of scholarship, for the requirements made by the University, as regards scholarship, teaching, equipment, etc., are of such a nature that they can be fulfilled by none but educational institutions of the highest type.

The justice of exempting from taxation private schools which have been doing the state's work in educating the children of the state is recognized by more than three-fourths of the states. By many states exemption from taxation is granted not only to secondardy schools but to primary and grammar schools as well.

MARSH URGES THE ADOPTION OF AMENDMENT NO. 2

In a statement issued last Tuesday, Will H. Marsh, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles, recommended the adoption of Amendment No. 2 on the November ballot, which provides for a tax on the gross earnings of the stage lines and other commercial users of the state highways.

"Amendment No. 2," said Marsh, "is the only measure on the ballot at this election which provides funds for the maintenance and repair of highways. It is estimated that it will yield from $750,000 to $1,000,000 annually for this purpose.

"The gasoline tax proposal, if it passes, will provide funds for new highway construction only.

"The state highway system now covers thousands of miles and it is the hope of everyone interested in the progress and development of the state that the highway system will be rapidly extended.

"The existing highways are in constant need of repair, and as the system is extended this need will increase proportionately. Funds for maintenanceand repair work are urgently required, and there is no better method proposed than No. 2 for increasing the funds available. I therefore hope that the voters of the state will give this measure their endorsement, as it has already been endorsed by the legislature, the State Board of Equalization, by Harvey M. Toy, chairman of the Highway Commission, and many others."

A man can run faster than a woman, yet he lets her catch him.

RACING HAS BEEN SALVATION OF THE BREEDING INDUSTRY

Local members of the advisory committee of the Racing Board Campaign Committee, the organization supporting No. 6, the initiative measure to restore h rse racing in California under strict state control and regulation, have been notified of the receipt of a letter from A. O. Stanley, former governor of Kentucky, in which he declares that the sport in his state has been made clean and has been the salvation of the breeding industry in the Blue Grass state. Former Governor Stanley writes:

"The turf in Kentucky under this law is in a most flourishing condition. It is the sentiment of the people that the passage of this law creating the State Racing Commission was the salvation of the vast breeding industry and the great sport of racing in this state.

"The sport in Kentucky is clean, and the people are well satisfied."

That millions may be invested not only in this section, but in many parts of California, by horsebreeders and tourists, is the assertion of H. J. Macomber, chairman of the executive committee for Northern California of the Racing Board Campaign Committee. His associates are Joseph O. Tobin, Archibald M. Johnson, John H. Rosseter and Rudolph Spreckels. Joseph M. Schenck, the noted motion picture producer, is chairman of the Southern California committee, which also comprises Carroll Allen, Carleton F. Burke, Charles W. Clark, Norman W. Church, H. H. Cotton, George Goldsmith, Neil S. McCarthy, W. W. Mines, Joseph Toplitsky, and Walter G. Van Pelt.

Among the thousands on the statewide advisory committee from San Mateo county are: Dr. Max Rothschild, Belmont; Douglas C. Alexander, Harry F. Collier, John F. Leinen, Wm. Eugene Murphy, H. R. Welch, Sidney J. Wolf, Burlingame; Walter S. Martin, Nion R. Tucker, Hillsborough; H. M. Agard, James Layne, J. H. Sullivan, Gus Taylor, Menlo Park; Eugene H. Grubb, Princeton; A. Cascadden, Floyd Clay, D. P. Flynn, George A. Kneese, Ambrose McSweeney, George A. Tudhope, Redwood City; Col. Daniel M. Burns, Walter Filer, San Mateo; C. T. Connelly, Fred A. Cunningham, A. J. Eschelbach, Reese Lloyd, Dr. J. C. McGovern, P. R. Thompson, Rod Tibbetts, B. H. Truax, South San Francisco.

FAVORS GASOLINE TAX

"Most of the other states of the Union hove a higher gasoline tax than California, although California is the most advertised state in the nation, and is the mecca of all motorists," says Senator Arthur H. Breed, author of the gas tax bill and also chairman of the legislative committee of nine that made a survey of the highways for the purpose of recommending the best method of completing the system. Breed urges the voters to approve Number 4, the Gas Tax Measure, on the ballot, on November 2.

"It is generally agreed that the gas tax is the only equitable way of taxing people in proportion to the service they get out of the highways," says Breed. "It is also the only way to tax tourists for their use of our highways."

It is explained that the present two-cent tax collected on gasoline is not applied to the construction of new highways, and that the proposed one-cent additional tax is to be used for construction purposes.

"We have had two bond issues for construction of state highways in the past ten years, but this money was spent long ago, and our highway system is only about one-third completed. There is not one completely paved highway leading to any of our bordering states. The state highways leading to Oregon, Nevada, Arizona and Mexican borders are only partly paved. This makes motor travel between California and bordering states unpleasant and it creates a bad impression with tourists entering our state."

Breed exhorted the people to support Number 4, and then discussed Proposition No. 8 on the ballot, as follows:

"The Los Angeles highway amendment (No. 8), would create a deficit in the general fund, and probably precipitate another bitter tax fight. Classification of roads in No. 8 is inequitable because if the bill passes, the southern section of the state, with 40 per cent of state roads, will get approximately 60 per cent of the funds provided under the bill. The passage of No. 8 would divide the state and bring politics into play in the administration and apportionment of highway funds for certain sections," he said.

Putnam county, Florida, holds the flogging record for the past year, during which sixty-three citizens have been whipped by self-appointed censors of their neighbors' conduct. Several white women were among the victims of mob displeasure. Governor Martin has been asked to take a hand in suppressing the floggers.

THE FAMILY BUDGET

Our nation, states and political subdivisions have found making a budget of expenditures has helped solve many problems of administration. Every family hould also learn to make a budget covering its principal items of expenditure, and among these the support of some religious organization should not be omitted.

Every family would find a stimulating effect from being connected with some church organization, if only one member of the family belongs and attends.

In the same way, the family institution should carry in its budge a fixed appropriation for church support. The family needs the church—most families still require marriage morality, funerals and baptism.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

There are more telephone conversations in the United States in three weeks than there are in Great Britain in a year.

Denmark has the best developed telephone system in Europe. Yet the state of Wisconsin, with only about four-fifths as many people as Denmark, has one and a half times as many telephones.

In proportion to population, Vermont has over twice as many telephones as Norway.

Russia has about sixty times as many inhabitants as Virginia; but there are more telephones in the Old Dominion than there are in the whole vast territory of Soviet Russia.

London has just installed its five hundred thousandth telephone. New York City has nearly one million five hundred thousand telephones.

The proposed remodeling of the Senate chamber at Washington is no doubt needed; so is the remodeling of a few Senators.

THE GASOLINE TAX MEASURE

Throughout the forty-five counties lying north of the Tehachapi there exists an overwhelming sentiment for the one-cent gasoline tax, Proposition 4 on the November ballot, it is stated by Edward H. Brown, campaign director for the All-California Highways campaign committee.

"It is my opinion," Brown said, that Proposition 4 will lead in the number of affirmative votes received by any measure on the ballot in these forty-five northern counties."

This optimistic opinion was based upon field reports made by a corps of workers and speakers, who are devoting all their time to the passing of the gasoline tax measure, and upon other indices, such as press support, and the general interest shown by the people.

"In only one or perhaps two counties of the section of the state covered by our campaign, that is north of the Tehachapi, have we found any considerable opposition to Number 4 The weakest spot, no doubt, is Kern county, where for local reasons there appears to be quite an opposition to the one-cent gasoline tax. There is also some opposition in Tulare, but not nearly so much as in Kern, but outside these two, we cannot find any serious anti-four sentiment."

There are now over 120 of these committees, and everyone is functioning in support of the gasoline tax. In addition the field workers directed from the San Francisco headquarters are completing the final surveys of the section, and arranging for gas tax meetings in practically all communities. Nearly one hundred such meetings have already been scheduled for the last few days of the campaign. Luncheon clubs offer themselves most freely for this purpose, as they meet every week, and usually there is more than one in every community of any size. Women organizations also have taken a very active part in the campaign for the gas tax, and deserve much credit for the splendid condition of the campaign.

Rival suitors for the hand of a modern girl also frequently run neck and neck.

"The truth will make you free," sometimes, but oftener it would send folks to jail.

NEW CHIEF OF STAFF

It has been announced by the Secretary of War that Major General Charles P. Summerall will become chief of staff of the army in December, whereby another outstanding American general of the World war will attain the highest position in the military service.

General Summerall is a native of Florida, 59 years old, and from his graduation from West Point in 1892 until he became commander of the First Division in France in 1918 his service was with the Artillery. In 1902 he planned the construction of Fort Seward, Alaska, and from 1905 until 1911 he was an instructor at West Point.

He was on staff duty during the Spanish-American War, served in the Philippines during the insurrection, in the Boxer campaign in China, and which he attained military distinction of the higest order, receiving many citations for gallantry in action.

As chief of staff he will be the military head of the Army, subject only to the President and the Secretary of War. His brilliant record will inspire the confidence of the Army and of the country at large.

OLD TIME RACING IN CALIFORNIA

First Match Race Between America Horses in California, 1847

By Edward A. Morphy, Editor San Francisco Argonaut

William A. Leidesdorff, the pioneer California merchant, after whom Leidesdorff street, San Francisco, is named, was prominent in local politics as an opponent of professional gambling. Nevertheless he was a keen sportsman and was very fond of horses. In 1845 he bought from Lansford Hastings the splendid red roan on which that Ohio pioneer led an immigrant party across the plains in 1843. This was considered the finest horse then in California, and Leidesdorff gave him the name Canelo, which is the Spanish term for a red roan horse.

He matched this animal against many local horses in races at the Mission Dolores and always won. On these occasions the horse was ridden by one of the sons of Captain Jose Antonio Sanchez of the Buri Buri Rancho. Canelo's successes were so easy and certain that the Sanchez boys induced Leidesdorff in 1847 to issue a standing challenge for a match race of 600 yards against any horse in California for $500 a side. This was then considered a large sum of money.

At that time, James H. Hudspeth, who had been in the Hastings party, was working in San Francisco. He was a friend of Hiram Smith, who had arrived in California a year or so earlier, and owned a very fine and powerful bay horse on which he had crossed the plains. Smith used this horse for plowing and other work on his farm near Napa.

Hudspeth was a good judge of horse flesh. He knew all about Canelo, and believed that Smith's horse was incomparably speedier. Therefore he accepted Leidesdorff's challenge and the match was set for a date some weeks later in November, 1847.

As Smith's horse had no particular name, Hudspeth gave it the first name of its owner, Hiram. Then he sent a San Jose lad, John Stilts, to bring the horses down from Napa, so that he could train it for a week or so on the local track, then the roadway east of the Mission Dolores.

Stilts got the horse all right and brought it as far as Martinez. At that place he put up for the night and when he arose next morning to resume his journey he found that the bay had been stolen.

By this time the match between Leidesdorff's famous roan and Hudspeth's unknown had become the leading topic of conversation in Northern California. It was the first match race arranged between "American" as distinguished from California horses. Therefore the disappearance of the bay created an unprecedented furore of excitement. Extraordinary charges and insinuations of skullduggery filled the air, and so hot became the quest that the thief eventually abandoned the horse. But it was two weeks later, on the very eve of the date set for the match, when Hudspeth himself finally recovered his champion within a few miles of Martinez. He loaded him on to a scow and had it towed down the bay, landing the animal at San Francisco in the nick of time to save his engagement.

The settlement of San Francisco was then in a wild fever of excitement over the incident. It was known that Hiram was out of condition and lacked the necessary training. Nevertheless Hudspeth's pluck in bringing him to the post aroused every sportsman's sympathies, and everybody in the town abandoned everything else for that day, and hurried out to the Mission to witness the race with Canelo.

Leidesdorff's roan was to be ridden by young Manuel Sanchez. Hudspeth had secured young Granville Grigsby, who brought the Grigsby party to California in 1845, as jockey for the bay.

The latter looked like a dishevelled cart-horse after its adventures, while Canelo was in the pink of condition.

All the notables of the town were present. Thaddeus Leavenworth, the Alcalde, after whom Leavenworth street is named, was the starting judge. The start is everything in a dash of 600 yards, and no fairer man could be conceived than the Alcalde, who was also a clergyman and a physician. Everybody at the course was betting, and nearly everybody laying his money on Canelo.

The horses cantered down through the crowd at the starting post. Canelo chafed and pawed while young Sanchez held him to his place. Grigsby, though new to his mount, had little trouble with the chastened Hiram.

Leavenworth dropped the white flag to a nearly perfect start. The better trained and more sophisticated Canelo made the best get-away. His rider knew him well. The bay lagged for a jiffy. Another jiffy, and he seemed to realize what he had to do. Grigsby, urging him with his hands, ran him nearly abreast of the roan. The crowd yelled and cheered its delight for about seven seconds.

Hiram ran up abreast of the roan. The cheering died down. Twelve seconds gone. A third of the race was run. The big bay had been neck and neck with the roan for half a hundred yards, seemingly pleased with such good company. Then Grigsby let him out. Like a rocket, Hiram sped away from his momentary partner.

Twenty seconds: The 400-yard mark is past. Three lengths behind, the roan is galloping gamely. Young Sanchez is lifting him along. Up at the post a little group begins cheering. Grigsby pulls his whip on the bay, and just touches him on the flank with it as he hunches down and rides well-bent for leather.

No need to do so. But Grigsby did not know his horse. Up the last hundred yards Hiram breezed along as he liked. Canelo, beaten and outclassed, was streaking away back of the bay.

The victory was not exactly a popular one; but Hudspeth and his friends were wild in their triumph.

Hudspeth, enriched by his victory, bought Hiram outright from Smith for fifty head of cattle, then worth about $500, a good price for a plow horse.

NEED LONGER MULES

Despite the almost universial adoption of motor transportation for civilian and military purposes alike, there is still an important place for the Army mule. He is indispensable for carrying the munitions and implements of war over roads impassable for wheeled vehicles.

He has been found particularly effective in carrying machine guns and light artillery in mountainous districts, where roads are scarce and native jungles must be penetrated.

But even the faithful mule has his limitations. Unfortunately his size is rather definitely fixed by nature, and this fact recently led to practical difficulties in connection with the transportation of 37 mm. guns in the Canal Zone.

Either this gun is too long or the mules now being furnished to the Army are too short. In packing the gun on the mule's back it is impossible to avoid tickling the mule's ears or his rump, both sensitive nerve centers. Therefore an appeal has gone to Weshington for longer mules.

Anyone with a bunch of mules built along the lines of a German dachshund would do well to communicate with the War Department at once.

HERE'S CHANCE FOR EVERYBODY TO HELP

The fire losses of the United States and Canada are increasing at an alarming rate. There is abundant evidence, however, to support the statement that organized effort along fire prevention lines pays real dividends.

Fresno, California, had one of the worst fire loss records in America. The local agents took hold of the situation, the fire department was reorganized, public sentiment aroused, and in eighteen months the losses were reduced from $3 to $1.70 per capita. Seattle, Washington, had a similar experience; and public support of the Berkeley, California, fire department has resulted in the reduction of the per capita loss in that city to 57 cents. As the result of a fire prevention campaign in Indianapolis, Indiana, the per capita fire loss was reduced from $4.37 in 1923 to $3.38 in 1924, and held at $3.47 in 1925. In Battle Creek, Michigan, from $5.39 to 91 cents. In Johnstown, Pennsylvania, the average weekly loss in 1924 was $2,685. During Fire Prevention week last year, it was held down to $50. Duluth, Minnesota, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and other cities report similar results.

The statistics prove that all classes and groups of people are guilty of carelessness, and, therefore, all must share in the responsibility for the destruction of over $500,000,000 worth of property and the loss of 15,000 lives per year. The National Board of Fire Underwriters has pointed out, however, that the annual loss under the head of matches-smoking alone, is $30,000,000 per year, and that if it were possible to eliminate the careless smoker, this loss would be cut in half.

A garage employe dropped a cigar butt in oil waste and destroyed the building and a score of automobiles. A night watchman in a public garage in Massachusetts left a burning cigarette in a stock room, destroying the building and $12,000 worth of cars. Industrial employes are no more careless than any other group, but the nature of their employment is such that carelessness is more likely to cause disaster.

Between the printed words that are so wise
And march so easily across the page,
Sometimes quite suddenly I catch the looks

To keep his pen undulled by woe or age—

HOW TO PREPARE MEALS

The planning of meals days beforehand seems a foolish waste of time to h i t-o r-m i s s housekeeperg The methodical, systematic housewife, who plans her meals often a week in advance, will find a vast field for individuality, ingenuity and economy in so doing.

The indolent and thriftless woman who spends her time in needless ways, and a few moments before the meal tears around wildly to prepare or see to the preparation of the food will find a limited field, for preparation and thought are both necessary for a well balanced and attractive meal, if economy and variety are to be considered.

Steaks and chops are often the poor man's food, because they are quickly made ready. Such meats are more expensive, less nutritious, and should be served only occasionally.

The coarser and cheaper cuts of meat may be prepared in thousands of ways but they take a longer period of cooking and care to serve acceptably.

It should be the pride of every housewife to work toward getting as much as possible out of the time, money and energy spent.

When cooking any food which boils over easily, grease the sides of the kettle. A roll of cheap toilet paper is handy in the kitchen to use to wipe out greasy utensils, thus saving hands, and towels. When grease is spilled a handful of soft paper will quickly take it up. Use it for scouring the sink and polishing the windows.

Hamburg Steak.—Prepare and season well a flat cake of hamburg steak, place on a baking dish and cover with latticed strips of fat salt pork. Bake, basting occasionally, using care not to disturb the decorations. Serve with a mushroom sauce. This is a dish not to be refused by the most fastidious.

Good Things in Season.

Where fresh mackerel can be obtained this recipe will be enjoyed:

Spiced Mackerel.—Split three fresh mackerel down the back and clean, removing the bones, scraping all the thin black skin from the inside. Cut off the heads and tails, divide each in half crosswise. Arrange the pieces in a shallow baking dish and add enough vinegar to reach to the top pieces, but not cover; sprinkle with salt and pepper and a very little cayenne; place a bayleaf on each, eight cloves, with four allspice dropped here and there in the vinegar. Bake in a slow oven for two hours. Serve hot with baked potatoes or the dish may be served cold with lemon quarters.

Chicken Patties.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well blended add one cupful of chicken stock; season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, cayenne and white pepper to taste. Add one cupful of cold diced chicken and cook slowly for five minutes. Fill patty shells and serve at once.

Royal Patty Shells.—Sift two cupfuls of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, then rub in four tablespoonfuls of shortening and enough ice water to make a dough to roll. Roll out thin, cut into circles and place on the outside of patty tins, lightly brushed with butter. Bake in a hot oven, open-side down. Remove the shells carefully and turn open-side up to bake for five minutes.

Bread Griddle Cakes.—Take two or three slices of dry bread, soak it in cold water until soft, then drain and squeeze dry. Place in a bowl and cover with a cupful or two of sour milk. In the morning add soda, just enough flour to make a good batter and fry on a hot griddle. If a tablespoonful or two of melted fat is added to the cake mixture, the griddle will need no greasing when frying the cakes.

Baked Beans.—Wash and soak a pound of lima beans over night. In the morning put them on in the same water and simmer until tender; then drain and put into a bean pot. Add salt, pepper and one-fourth pound of bacon which has been put through a meat chopper, a tablespoonful of salt, a tablespoonful each of chopped onion and brown sugar and molasses. Add enough water to come to the top of the beans and bake until a golden brown.

Peach Rosettes.—Cut sponge cake into rounds with a large cooky cutter, cook in butter until delicately brown, then on each place half a peach. With a pastry bag, top each with a rose of sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Sprinkle with pistachio nuts and serve.

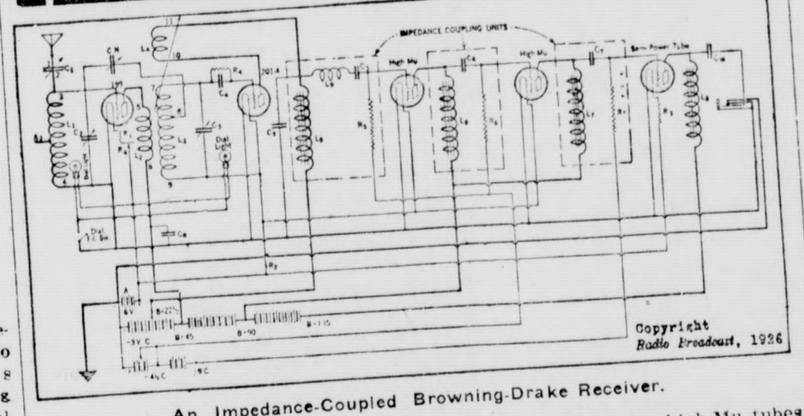
RADIO



An Impedance-Coupled Browning-Drake Receiver.

If a careful analysis of the outstanding receiver circuits of the past twelve months be made, it is not unlikely that of them all there will be only a few that rate high in popular esteem by virtue of their excellence in performance. Of these few not many were patterned after other than the old familiar tuned radio frequency plus regenerative detector circuit. In most cases, receivers are what they are because of the individual type of apparatus employed, providing that, to start with, a good circuit is selected.

The Browning-Drake, not an exception to the rule, is one receiver that amply illustrates this principle. First described in Radio Broadcast, this circuit has stood the test of time remarkably well. The circuit itself is not revolutionary; just a simple tuned, neutralized, radio-frequency amplifier, with regenerative detector. To this may be added any type of audio amplifier that strikes the fancy of the constructor. It is the tuned part of the receiver that requires the main attention because, with a good amplifier, the signal in the plate circuit of the detector tube may be amplified to the desired power and then outputted to a satisfactory loud speaker. In speaking so of the audio amplifier it is not the intent to belittle this very important section of a receiver; it is intended that emphasis be placed on that end of the receiver upon which we depend for the accomplishment of our tuning, for if that part of the receiver is not satisfactory the best audio amplifier in creation will not help matters..

The latest model of the Browning-Drake is the design of John B. Brennan, technical editor of Radio Broadcast Magazine, and is described by him in that publication.

Coils of Low-Loss Type.

The coils employed by the author are of a distinctly low-loss type, those specified being the special National Browning-Drake ones, space wound. However, it is a simple matter to construct the coils at home.

One problem in the design of a radio receiver has been to control volume effectively without affecting the quality of the output in the loud speaker. In cases where the volume control is incorporated in the audio amplifier channel of a receiver, some shifting of the audio frequency characteristics usually results when the control is varied. This change is one direct cause of imperfectness of quality. Some constructors place this volume control in the detector circuit; others in the radio-frequency amplifier circuit. In the Browning-Drake model described here the volume control, consisting of a variable 30-ohm resistance, is inserted in series with the filament ballast which regulates the flow of current to the radio-frequency tube. The advantages thus gained are two-fold: First, a very smooth control of volume is obtained without affecting the tone characteristic of the audio channel. Secondly, by placing the variable resistance in this position, overloading of the radio-frequency amplifier, especially on local station reception, is prevented. The control, at this point, enables the constructor to maintain a high degree of neutralization, which in turn allows of fine tuning without the probability of self-oscillation.

In the radio-frequency amplifier stage it was observed that a type 199 tube neutralized more perfectly and consistently than a 201-A tube. Also the actual gain for the 199 tube, taking into consideration the possibility of incomplete neutralization for the 201-A tube, was perhaps as much as with the latter, and is to be preferred in the final construction. In the detector circuit regeneration is obtained by the usual tickler method, whereby a movable coil is coupled to the secondary circuit. A 201-A tube is employed in this circuit.

For ease of assembly the National Impedaformers were selected, although if it is so desired, any standard type of choke coil, condenser and grid leak may be substituted. The National Impedaformers combine, in one unit, the choke coil, isolating condenser and grid leak; by means of convenient terminal posts it is a simple job to wire units into the circuit. Also, in the input unit, following the detector stage, a most serviceable radio-frequency choke coil is conveniently included within the housing. It is employed to insure against passing radio-frequency currents into the audio-frequency channel. The plate impedances L5, L6, L7 are of 100 henries each, and the grid leaks R5, R6, R7 are all 0.1 megohms. The isolating condensers C5, C6 and C7 are of 0.1 mfd. These values are given for those who prefer to buy their choke coils, etc., separately. Three stages of this impedance-coupled audio-frequency amplification are employed. In the first and second stages, high-Mu tubes permit of a higher amplification than if ordinary 201-A tubes were used. In the last stage a special output coil is included for the following reasons: Where quality output is desired of an audio amplifier, it is out of the question to use other than the type 112, 171, or other tubes especially designed for power work. With such a tube in the last stage better quality is obtained than if the 201-A type of tube were to be used. Since, with the power-output type of tube, it is necessary to employ a high value of "B" battery voltage on the plate, it would be ruinous to do so without making some provision for the protection of the loud speaker windings. This is exactly what the output coil does. Instead of the drag that is exerted on the diaphragm of the loud speaker by the direct current when the output coil is not contained in the circuit, thereby tending partly to paralyze the diaphragm, the special output circuit places on the loud speaker an a. c. signal voltage, allowing the diaphragm to swing freely in synchronism with the signal impulses or discharges of the isolating condenser in this circuit.

The List of Parts.

In review of the circuit we find it consists of the following: A stage of tuned, neutralized, radio-frequency amplification and a regenerative detector followed by three stages of impedance-coupled audio-frequency amplification, in the output of which is arranged a special isolating device as a protection for the loud speaker.

To construct a receiver similar to the model described, the following parts should be obtained:

1 Micarta panel 3-16 in. by 7 in. by 21 in.
1 Radion subpanel 1 3-16 in. by 7 in. by 20½ in.

Use of Power Tube to Give Greater Volume

Power tubes designed for use in the last stages of radio sets are designed to deliver a greater volume of signal to the loudspeaker than can be obtained with ordinary tubes without overloading them. The dry-cell power tubes are especially effective for use in operating loudspeakers from dry-cell tubes. Certain storage-battery and light-socket tubes deliver enough signal volume to furnish music for dancing in large halls. Power tubes are usually operated with higher "B" battery and "C"-battery voltage than ordinary tubes, and must therefore be used in sets equipped with separate "B" and "C"-battery terminals for the power tubes.

Ways of Connecting Dry Cells for Radio

There are three ways of connecting up dry cells—series, parallel and a combination of both, series-parallel. When a series connection is desired, the center contact of one dry cell is connected to the outer one of the next cell and the center of that to the outer of the next, etc. When a parallel connection is desired, the inner terminals of all cells are connected together and then the outer connections of all cells connected together. A combination of the two is cells in series and then the two groups connected in parallel.

Burnt Tubes Useful

Use burnt-out tubes as a battery connector. Break the glass, solder leads from the battery to the wires inside the brass shell and fill the shell with sealing wax. Now connect the battery leads from the wiring of a set to a socket arranged conveniently on the back of the cabinet. It is a simple matter to "plug in."

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

MANY LEGION BILLS O. K.'D BY CONGRESS

An unusual number of bills sponsored by the American Legion for the benefit of World war veterans were made into laws at the first session of the Sixty-ninth congress. All classes of veterans will benefit. Summarizing some of the results of recent legislation piloted by the Legion, John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the national legislative committee of the Legion, declared:

"Our veterans with arrested tuberculosis will now receive $50 a month, which we hope will prevent reactivity of their disease through overwork.

"All of our war disabled, except those rated permanently and totally disabled, may now reinstate their insurance and obtain the benefits for themselves and their families which the insurance was created to extend.

"Time limitations for the filing of claims for death and disability compensation have been extended, as well as the period of vocational training for those who have not completed their courses.

"Free hospitalization is now extended to veterans of all wars and expeditions.

"Veterans are forgiven overpayments made them while in the service.

"The gallant youngsters who misrepresented their ages in order to get a chance to fight for their country, are now deemed to have been honorably discharged.

"The sons of buddies asleep in France will now have an opportunity to attend West Point and Annapolis through special Presidential appointment, if they have the qualifications.

"An armed sentry walks constant post before the tomb of our Unknown Soldier at Arlington; and the tomb, itself, will be completed in a simple and fitting manner.

"The air defense of the nation has been provided with means of development through the enactment of forward-looking legislation; modernization of our navy has been continued, and the army retained at approximately its present strength.

"The secretary of war is authorized to allot a representative collection of war trophies to the American Legion museum at national headquarters, Indianapolis, Ind."

Adjusted Compensation Claimed by 3,250,000

The benefits of the adjusted compensation act have been requested by about 3,250,000 World war veterans up to the present time, according to the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion, which has been in close touch with the working out of the bonus law for which the American Legion made a determined fight. The number of death claims which have been paid under this law is 20,687, totaling $21,342,715. Claims of dependents for benefits on account of deceased veterans, under the provision of the law, numbering 22,455, have been disallowed, but the opinion has been expressed by officials of the veterans' bureau that on review under terms of amendments passed by congress on July 3, 1926, a large number of these claims will finally be paid.

California Needs More Funds to Aid Veterans

California's 300-odd American Legion posts have been called by the new department commander, Dr. John G. Slavich of Oakland, to take part in an active campaign for a $200,000,000 bond issue proposal to be voted on at the November election. The proposed bond issue would provide funds for the continuation of the work of the California veterans' welfare board through which money is loaned to war veterans for the purchase of farms and homes. Already approximately $10,000,000 has been loaned to California veterans for this purpose through the board.

His Reason

The jury had found the defendant guilty of burglary.

"Have you anything to say before I sentence you?" asked the judge.

"Only that I'm not guilty," replied the defendant, "and that I object to being identified by a fellow who had his head under the bedclothes all the time while I was in the room."—American Legion Monthly.

Things That Help

"Ah, well," moralized the moralizer, "somewhere behind the clouds the sun is shining."

"Maybe," demoralized the demoralizer. "And under the sea is land, but that doesn't help a guy when he falls overboard."—American Legion Monthly.

As Usual

"By the way," asked the "movie" director, "what became of that chap who married our leading woman last month?"

"Oh the usual thing," replied his assistant, smothering a yawn. He's been shot."—American Legion Monthly.

ADVENTURES

For years Earle had been playing Indian. When he was quite, quite young he had been given an Indian suit which had started him off on his adventures.

He had had adventures, too.

It was really remarkable but so often when he had put on that suit the adventures just seemed to come rushing in at him, bidding him leave whatever he was doing for there were excitements to be had.

And Earle had had excitements.

There had been the time when there was the fire in the woodshed and he had discovered it and had had to think quickly in order to save the whole house from catching fire.

If he had taken the time to rush up the street to let people know there was a fire or to get the fire department, the woodshed fire would have been well under way and the wooden house would have never been saved.

Earle had been alone in the house, and he had put the fire out by himself, put it out enough, at least, so that it was safe to put in an alarm and to summon others to make sure that it did not spread and that it was not smoldering.

He had been praised for that, and he had deserved praise.

But he remembered that dreadful, long, long moment when he had first discovered the fire and when he had wondered what he should do.

How dreadful it would have been if he had lost his head in the excitement and had done the wrong thing!

No one knew how hard it had been to decide then and there in a twinkling as he had decided.

How thankful he was that he had decided correctly.

Well, he had been wearing his Indian suit then and he had somehow felt that that had helped to think quickly.

He Had Been Wearing His Indian Suit.

He had thrown aside his feathered head-gear and had set to work with dippers of water.

There had been many adventures that had turned up when he had worn it but none more wonderful, in prospect at any rate, than that which now was being considered.

"We thought," his family said, "that we might take a trip and that we might settle down for a few months in one of those small settlements where we could have plenty of out-of-door life and rest."

His father and mother had never had a real holiday and now was their chance.

Earle looked up all he could about the place where they decided to go.

In the first place it was off the beaten track and they only had a train there twice a week, and there were two Indian reservations right near at hand.

There were springs with gushing hot water that the Indians had discovered and there were deep, mountainous woods and ravines, and there were markings on great red rocks of happenings in the lives of Indians long, long ago.

Oh, and such things as had happened! Such discoveries, such wild animal life, such freedom from everything usual. He heard of a horse thief who had been caught in one of those mighty canyons and that had named it Horsethief Canyon after the man.

He had heard that the horse was still there—owned by some gentle respectable master.

Earle wondered if he would be allowed to ride that horse.

Think what it would mean to the horse of a famous horsethief had hidden in canyons and live the food and water that the mountains and woods could give.

The more Earle thought of this the more thrilled and thrilled he became.

The more he read what he found about that section of the country more interesting it seemed, and the more pictures he saw the more impatient he became to leave.

The trip was now a great promise.

For Better or Worse

"Daddy, is a man allowed to have only one wife?"

"That's all, my boy."

"Then why does it say in the Bible book that he must take four or four worse?"

A Child's Question

"Mummy, is this a real vase?"

"Yes, dear."

RACING INITIATIVE MEASURE

The Racing Initiative Measure—No. 6—which should be adopted by the voters of California at the election on November 2, creates a board, appointed by the governor, to regulate and license horse racing and pari mutuel betting within race track enclosures; limits racing period at each track; prohibits licensing racing at tracks constructed, without the board's approval, after November 1, 1926; limits licensee's return to nine per cent on capital invested; prescribes as license fees $500 each race day and licensee's net profits above return allowed; appropriates fees to board's salaries and expenses, dividing the balance equally between the Veterans' Welfare Board and the State Agricultural Board. It authorizes licenses for limited period at county fairs or agricultural exhibits.

George Washington and Andrew Jackson were patrons of racing, and other sports of the day, but particularly were partial to the "sport of kings." Even the bitterest opponents of racing would hesitate to class these former presidents as "undesirables."

ACTIVITIES OF THE LADIES OF ST. MAXIMUS CHURCH

On Tuesday evening there was a meeting of the laides of St. Maximus church in the parish hall, Mrs. F. Michelson presiding. It was decided to discontinue the Wednesday afternoon whists and to hold a regular weekly social whist instead on every Thursday evening. The ladies of the parish will take turns acting as hostess at these affairs.

Committees to take charge of the monthly whist to be held in the Daly City Auditorium were appointed.

Preparations are under way for a turkey whist and dance in the Daly City Auditorium, Tuesday, November 2. An unusual array of inducements will be offered to the players at this coming whist.

A large raido will be installed in the Auditorium, and the returns of the election will be received during the whist and dance.

A large turnout of children from the various schools were present at the 8 o'clock mass at St. Maximus church. They came to see the erection of the new Sunday school banner.

The new tennis, basketball, and handball courts, to which the general public will be admitted, are in coures of construction. These courts are on the ground adjoining the church itself.

GRACE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A happy Sunday evening, October 24. Theme: "The Whole Family." A home without children and children without a home. Weeks and Kelly; was the absence of legalized saloons the cause of present crime? VOTERS, ATTENTION

A reception will be given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dibble, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Lorentzen, 674 Templeton avenue, Daly City, Wednesday evening, October 27, from 7 to 11 o'clock. Mr. Dibble is a candidate for constable of the First township, and would like to personally meet all the voters of Daly City, but feels it is impossible to make a house to house canvas, so the committee working for his election is taking this opportunity for the voters to meet him. HIGHWAY FINANCING

The future financing of California's highway construction, involving the prosperity of the state for years to come, rests in two measures on the November ballot, one of which, No. 8, the sectional measure of certain Los Angels interests, must be defeated, declares C. C. Cottrell, manager of the highways bureau of the California State Automobile Association.

In urging every motorist to work and vote for No. 4, the gasoline tax plan for completion of the state highway system, Cottrell declared that it is equally important that a "NO" vote be cast against No. 8.

"While the gasoline tax plan of No. 4 is designed to benefit the entire state, No. 8 is an inadequate, sectional, dangerous and un-American measure that would upset the present state taxation system, throw highway administration into a chaotic condition, divert the lion's share of highway funds, both maintenance and new construction, to certain favored southern counties, and destroy state unity by creation of two highway and voting districts—a 'northern' and a 'southern' California."

Cottrell explained how No. 8 would allocate the greater portion of highway money to thirteen southern counties after splitting the state into two parts, would "freeze" the present highway system so that additions required by traffic would be practically barred and would tie the hands of state officials.

"Certain southern counties would get super-boulevards under No. 8, while other sections would have to be satisfied with inadequate roads," he added.

"No. 8 is a vicious, unfair, complicated and arbitrary measure, and even goes so far as to provide that gasoline tax funds, if No. 4 also carries, shall be divided according to the unjust and inequitable provisions of No. 8.

"It is not enough that No. 4 be adopted. No. 8 must be defeated, if the cause of good roads in California is to survive."

Assistance to the fairs some distance from the large centers of population may be expected if No. 6, the Racing Initiative Measure, is approved by the voters on November 2. The proposed law specifically provides for help for agricultural and horticultural exhibitions from the funds derived from this sport, which should be returned to the people of California.

Dr. Jameson of the Carnegie Institute declares that young women write better English than young men. Which is rather faint praise.

Following the "death ray" comes the "death noise," possibly the amplified tone of a saxophone.
